Remarks

In doubling Cape Horn found the Eastward with the Wind to the Southward & Westward, "as is generally the case" the object is to go well to Southward say in Lat 60 & by so doing you can take the wind low your Eastward tack and go round generaly, but this was not the case with us in working to the E. we had the wind dead ahead occasionaly a favourable gale & in going to the W we found the wind N W. which made quite a long passage we are so far to the Northward at this time we are in hopes of a fair wind for some time to come, we are also in a good place to see Sperm Whale in hopes we shall and get one too, but we have not much time to stop we ordered to go on the N. West in season which commences in April but we have hoped for the better

June 25th 1846 Sighted brave standing to the N & W saw plenty of Whale. they appeared to be very different from those we saw to the Southward of us we lowered several times went on to one but owing to the incapability of the Mate the Boatsteerer could not fasten & myself not able to go in a Boat owing to a severe boil on my wrist. "Then it quite hard feelings existing on board in regard to Officers power. usurping the capability of others In the first place our Chief Mate is a man little calculated for such a voyage as this. SE. in his capasity. he lacks for want of energy. and is a man little calculated to encourage the crew which is a thing very necessary. and pains should be taken to do so. In regard to his qualities for a Whaleman. little can be said. He is not what a Whaleman call a (Fishy Man) though he appears to try to do his best. few minutes he does because he is so frightened when he gets close to one. he can neither give his Boatsteerer no chance: nor do any thing himself. Consequently much cannot be expected when most is should be. (as it is is valuable for a 1st. Mate to get half of the voyage) this being rather tardy in doing his duty. Necessarily breeds bad family growls between the Capt. & himself. that makes all hands discontented for when the Capt. & Mate are at variance on a Whaling Voyage very seldom success attends. and the pleasures prospects of spending 3 yrs this side of Cape Horn is not very agreeable especialy on account of third parties. our other officers are very good Whaleman as far as you can Hope

A brief extract from a Journal kept on board Ship Archer of New Bedford Moses Snell master by Luther Ripley Jr

Thursday March 18th 1846

Light winds and fine weather standing to the North & East employed in mending sails &c. also quite excitement on board our vessel which ships today caused by high words between the Cabin & 2d Mate. The cause was. as stories reported to the Old man by the "Cook". It ended as usual "[illegible]" as it began. A few explanations are here necessary regarding the parties concerned. "Cook" The first "place" the Cook is a "Guinea Nigger" of the first extraction. he makes great pretentions to religion. is quite zealous in the church. also he is exceeding crafty. and is held in estimation by the Old-Man. on acct of his religious pretentions. which coincide with his. Consequently a greater part of his leisure time is spent with the Cook either in the Cabin or Galley. he makes him his confidential partner. respecting things said and done by the Officers & crew such proceedings of course would tend to create hard feelings between the said parties and undoubtedly some conversation would take place which otherwise would not. For the present case something of the kind took place. trivial and without any dreaming on stairs. but being pursued and highly coloured by the Cook. it was time to make sweat. Thus. 2? the Enemy a man of grit would not give in. consequently this dispute as well as others was Romantic lengthy and quite
